The Weasel

This month I'm going to be talking about the weasel, which can be distinguished from the stoat by the fact that it is smaller and has no black tip to its tail (typical weight 100g and 20 cm long). Pound for pound. the weasel has a reputation as being one of the most agressive animals on the planet. In fact the Anglo-Saxon root "weatsop" means "a vicious bloodthirstv animal". It will often take animals larger than itself although its favourite food is the field vole. Weasels are quite secretive but are also more common than many people think. They are active both day and night although I have only seen them during the day. The last time I saw one was about a year ago as it disappeared under a door into Dan Sloan's back vard at the corner of Maypole Rd and Hawstead Lane. In this area I have seen them from World's End Lane to Shoreham. Usually they are running for cover across a road. On one occasion. I saw something going back and forth into the hedge in front of my cottage. At first I thought it was a rat but a closer look revealed a mother weasel ferrying her young, one by one from one location to another. On another occasion, on a footpath in Shoreham near the chalk cross. I saw a weasel with a mouse in its mouth. A retired gentleman was sitting at a picnic table and he said " you see that weasel, it just ran over my feet "! It is often the way that predators will forget everything else once they have a meal in their mouth and just head for home throwing caution to the wind.

As a predator, weasels were once persecuted because they would take chickens eggs. Nowadays weasels are occasionally known to cause distress to garden owners because they will enter bird boxes. A retired lady I know who lives in Shoreham had a bird box with a camera installed to watch the parents bring up the young. Strangely all but one of the young disappeared and then a few days later that was gone as well. The garden is frequented by weasels, and although a weasel was never caught in the act, the most probable cause of the infanticide was a weasel which is small enough to climb through the opening in the box. I guess he considers it as a convenient lunch box.

Road Accident Map

Visit www.crashmap.co.uk and put in any post code to see a map of logged accidents from 2005 to 2010. It only records those involving emergency services. This map shows 8 accidents at the Court Rd/Warren Rd junction and 6 at the Court Rd/Church Rd junction of varying degrees of seriousness. The information is not complete as several known accidents seem to be missing

Expanding the Hewitts roundabout shows a very large number of accidents. This will come as no surprise to those of us who use it on a regular basis.

A Very Advanced Notice!

This year's Carols from the Bells will be Thursday 15th Dec from 8.15. Let's hope it is not thick snow again! This looks set to be a very busy and jolly night since both the evening WI and the Masons will be having their Christmas Dinners that night.

From Safer Bromley News - August 2011

August saw some unprecedented disorder across London and, though the damage caused to businesses here was less widespread than elsewhere, Bromley was far from unscathed. Bromlev Police and Bromley Council were quick to respond to the isolated mindless damage caused by public disorder in the borough's high streets which resulted in more than 50 businesses sustaining damage and looting on 8 and 9 August. Police numbers were quickly enhanced on our streets with the Council leading on the clean-up. while offering teams of dog handlers that normally provide security in Bromley's parks to work alongside police, adding further welcome visible presence.

Safer Bromley Partnership Chairman Cllr Tim Stevens said: "It is a tribute to our local police and our partnership working, and that includes the involvement of businesses and local law-abiding residents, that Bromley quickly fought back to keep its reputation as one of the safest boroughs in London. We will do everything we can to prevent our streets and businesses being treated in this way." The Council's town centre managers have been working with businesses to compile information on the damage and identify any real hardship with a view to developing a package of help supported by central government.

From Cllr Tim Stevens Chairman, Safer Bromley Partnership I and my fellow councillors were astounded, firstly by the wanton damage inflicted on many areas of London during last month's public disorder, and secondly by the spirit and tenacity of the police and our local communities to rally round and get back to normal as soon as possible.

I should like to commend our local police on their response to what was an appalling situation and join many others in thanking them for the brave actions of their officers. Praise must also go to the quick thinking actions of the Council's CCTV department and our Environmental Services people for clearing up the mess and removing potential missiles.

It is thanks to the marvellous partnership working we have here that Bromley can reinforce its reputation as a pleasant safe place to live and do business.

From Charles Griggs. Borough Commander Bromley Police response applauded Like many, I was sickened and appalled by what I witnessed on the streets of Bromley on 8 August. As a veteran of Brixton in '81 and Tottenham in '85, I could never have imagined such behaviour in our borough. Since then, we have arrested more than 80 people for offences linked to the violence and disorder. The borough's CCTV is proving invaluable with images so good that people are even surrendering at Bromley having seen themselves in the papers. I have set up a full -time team to hunt down those people who brought violence and terror to our borough and bring them to justice.

I am immensely proud of the dedication, professionalism and bravery displayed by my officers in extremely difficult conditions. I have been overwhelmed by messages of support and goodwill in recent weeks. It makes me realise how valued we are by our community in Bromley. I am sincerely grateful to residents. businesses, and our partners for their support through these unprecedented and challenging times. Did you see anything, information? Images of outstanding offenders are in local media and at www.met.police.uk www.newsshopper.co.uk Anyone with information should call the Police Investigation Team on 07769 616 434 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

The Village Gates - Response

Dear Richard Brewin

Thank you for your letter to the Village Voice regarding the Village Gates.

I and your Committee have been working for almost 2 vears on various improvements, in conjunction with our 3 Ward Councillors who present our requests to Bromley Council.

This presentation was made following our AGM in November 2010 when the residents had the opportunity to view the various designs of the Gates and voice their opinions.

Our aim is to make Chelsfield Village a safer place without damaging the environment.

The Village Gates and the Double Yellow Lines outside and opposite the Five Bells are the beginning of suggested improvements.

Unfortunately, Bromley Council decided where the Gates would be positioned taking into consideration sight lines and damage to the hedgerows.

Cost was a major factor in deciding how many Gates would be erected and it was considered that Chelsfield Lane, which is used as a 'rat run'to avoid the Traffic lights in Court Road and also the junctions of Court Road with Warren Road. Church Road, Bucks Cross Road and Hawstead Lane would be suitable to try and slow the volume of speeding traffic. It was not intended to exclude other Roads / Lanes in the Village.

At our July Committee meeting it was agreed that the Gate in Bucks Cross Road is not in the right position and the signage is wrong.

We will endeavour to get this gate moved but if this is not possible to just show a speed limit of 30mph with repeater signs of 30 mph to the Well Hill junction.

Our next Committee meeting is Wednesday 31st August and this problem will be discussed again.

Thank you for your input, we are pleased to receive residents views and will keep the Village Voice updated.

Chelsfield To Brighton Charity Bike Ride

On Saturday 28th August was the inaugural Chelsfield village to Brighton bike ride in aid of Help the Heros and The Not Forgotten Association. 49 cyclists took up this challenge with all getting to Brighton apart from one bike suffering a mechanical failure. It was a great success and hopefully will become a yearly event. (If your editor can do it, you can!)

Huge thanks must go to Keith who put in so much time and care to organize this fantastic event which went so smoothly from start to finish!

Bike Ride Funds Raised

Its taken a few weeks, but Brighton bike ride raised we finally got the last of the personal sponsors in. I'm pleased to be able to tell you the Chelsfield to £1731. This is going to be divided equally between Help for Heroes and Not Forgotten

(another very worthy service charity)

Well done Chelsfield Village!

Produce Show Report

Numbers of entries and entrants were slightly down on last year at 256 and 42 respectively. We put this down to the late date which coincided with some regular exhibitors' holidavs. Next vear's date is already booked for an earlier 1st September. The decision to mix the children's entries in with the adult classes provided a more satisfactory and space saving set up. In the absence of Leslie Virgo. the Best in Show was awarded by asking all the judges to nominate their preferred winner and coming to a consensus.

This year the village is looking much better than might have been expected given the difficult weather conditions. The transformation of the entrance to the village wrought by the rendering and new windows of Gladsholme is a compliment to the new owners, who where busy working on the garden as the judging took place. If the house is anything to go by they will be contenders for the award in future vears.

Judging this year was difficult because many other properties stand out, 3 lvv Cottages has some well tended colour in a small space, June Cottage's basket and window box display is glorious, 7 Orlestone Gardens has some very strong colour while carrying its planting round the corner into Warren Road well, last years winner 5 Orlestone Gardens still has great kerb appeal and the firm hand at 2 Lillys Farm Cottages continues to deliver great structure, colour and a well kept feel. The final garden that stands out, and this year's winner. maintains the summer's riotous theme by providing a rather more welcome riot of its own. So the winner is 1 Ivy Cottages, often a contender for the award. this year it excels with a wonderful diversity of well tended planting with bursts of colour especially in the roses.

The cups were awarded as follows:

Knox Cunningham Cup
Susan Down and Rosemary Barrett
Well Hill Cup
Coulson Family

Comments made by judges, participants and nonparticipants have been noted. Always make sure your entry is "according to schedule" or it will be disqualified. For those of us who struggled with the gypsy tart recipe (a couple of reported disasters trying to remove it from the baking dish/tray), the tart could have been left in the container, but it is best to remove the pastry from the dish/tray after baking blind so that the base does not soften on cooling, then, after baking with the filling the base would have been stronger.

Our thanks go to the many judges, judges assistants, those who set up on the Friday evening, cleared away after the show, prepared the paperwork, provided refreshments, collected and polished the cups, handled the booking in process, and especially to all who organised the wonderful raffle. I think some people come just for the raffle, without which we would have made a substantial loss.

Faster Broadband for 01959 Numbers

The latest on faster broadband (10Mb/s) can be found at: http:// www.crockenhillbroadba nd.com/index files/ LatestNews.htm

Briefly, Call Flow have installed a cabinet near Hewitts roundabout that will act as a local telephone exchange for broadband for 01959 numbers.

This will bring 10Mb/s broadband to 01959 numbers within 1 mile of the roundabout. In addition, there will be a radio link on the large mobile phone mast at Well Hill. Anyone who case see the top of that mast could have 10Mb/s broadband via a radio link. All these fast broadband links are dependant on the installation of radio links being installed on the Well Hill mobile phone mast. This has required planning permission which is expected to be granted this month. To find out more, contact Call Flow on 01622 870405 who are referring to this proiect as Crockenhill Broadband which will bring fast broadband to Crockenhill, Well Hill and Chelsfield.

New Burial Ground

St Martins Church is rapidly running out of space for burials. We do however own the field adjacent to the churchyard, known as The Tryhorn Field. It used to be a piggery and was annexed when the A224 was built. It was once part of the village recreation ground and cricket pitch before the village was so thoughtlessly severed in 1926 by the bypass. Before then, there was a delightful rural stroll from village to church. The field is at present let out for grazing, but this tennure ends 31st December when we shall apply for planning permission to use this land for burials - always it's intended use. The Glebe Field,next to the rectory,is also now vacant and is to be improved by harrowing,so that it it will be a more fertile meadow next year, and ready not only perhaps for good grazing, but for use by the church Fete and parking for the Fair. Philip Lane

An Early History of Chelsfield Village School - Part 6

One of the most onerous daily tasks for Mrs. Wickenden in the Village School involved preparing the open coal fires and later on the solid fuel stoves used to heat the classrooms from early times right up until the late 1950s. At the end of each School day the fire-grates and later on solid fuel stoves had to be cleaned out by Mrs. Wickenden and re-laid/made up ready for lighting early next day well before the children and teachers arrived. At the end of each day fresh supplies of coal for each grate and in later years anthracite for the stoves had to be carried inside ready to enable the fires to be kept going easily over the following day These tasks alone must have been strenuous every day but were only a small part of the overall job to be undertaken. In addition classrooms had to be cleaned and tidied and also corridors, washrooms, outside toilets etc. had to be attended to ready for when School commenced next day. Until at least the late 1950s the School classrooms had bare.

wooden floorboards which had to be swept every day and also regularly scrubbed. In later times lino was available and could be mopped which at least saved the onerous scrubbing necessary up until that period.

A huge debt of gratitude is due to Mrs Wickenden for so many years of hard work which helped make the Village School a place where children were able to achieve a great deal in School work in a clean and well-ordered classroom environment. Mrs Wickenden worked at Chelsfield Village School until reaching retirement age at which stage I am sure that she was quite content to hand over the Caretaker's responsibilities and burdens to her successor!

In more recent years the work of School Caretaker has been undertaken by Mrs. Sylvia Wingrove who worked at the Village School for 23 years. Over that long period "Sylvie" has naturally been a familiar figure in Chelsfield Village - especially riding to and fro on her motorcycle! During these later times at least some of the onerous, physical labour as Caretaker has been alleviated by modern technology - especially where heating and lighting are concerned. However. classrooms, corridors, washroom facilities and the outside toilets still have to be cleaned and in Winter time the cold and often back-aching task of clearing snow in the playgrounds always falls to the unfortunate Caretaker! Following on the dedicated work of Mrs Wickenden a considerable debt of gratitude is also due to Mrs Wingrove for her contribution to the well-being of many hundreds of children at Chelsfield Village School whilst working as Caretaker. Unfortunately, recurring ill-health meant that Mrs. Wingrove needed to retire from her position as Caretaker.

In the early years of the Village School and indeed right up until around the late 1940s there was no provision of Midday meals for pupils. The children attending who came from long distances brought a packed meal to eat during the Midday break and relied on hot meals to be provided at home. If it was convenient and possible in the time available other children walked back home to lunch and then back to School again for the afternoon lessons. In my own family all three "Parkes" children walked back to the Rock and Fountain at lunch time and then back to School again. I say "walked" but if they dawdled and were late home they needed to do a very fast run back to School to meet the afternoon gatelocking deadline! They certainly hurried home next day!

In the course of the morning period children during the 1920s/30s were able to have a drink of a third of a pint of milk for a payment of 1d per day or alternatively Horlicks for ½ d per day. At other times of the day children had access to water per cupful inside the School washroom and later on via drinking fountains in the School playgrounds. No doubt both these facilities were much used at lunch times by girls and boys staying all day in the School premises.

Superb Music At The Village Hall

On Saturday 22nd October, there will be a fundraising concert by Willie Austen and his family in aid of Chelsfield Cricket Club Willie is a wellrespected singer on the pub and club circuit and plays a mean 12-string guitar and his kids are equally talented. His eldest son Oli is a superb guitarist, capable of jazzy licks or a bit of fret-melt when required and, remarkably, is an exceptionally good drummer. A highlight of their occasional appearances at the Five Bells is Willie's daughter Charlotte (Charlie) who fronts a number of bands and has a breathtaking voice which raises the hairs on the back of your neck. Equally capable of belting it out, or singing the softest ballad, Charlie accompanies herself on acoustic guitar and is a quite remarkable talent.

They play a wide range of broadly acoustic covers and never fail to entertain.

Terry Sparkes is an old friend of the family and has set up this gig to raise money for and raise the profile of the Chelsfield Cricket Club. Peter Townsend will be providing food and there will be a bar. Tickets will be available on the door. priced at £4. Doors will open at 8:30pm - please come along and support the Family von Austen and your local cricket club!

Roadworks - Mayor of London's Letter

Badly managed roadworks are a headache for Londoners and a drain on our economy. I have just introduced new, tighter standards for roadworks and making it easier for you to tell us when you spot sloppy examples so we can take action to sort it out. If you drive in London, you can report sites that don't come up to scratch at tfl.gov.uk/roadworks TfL has pledged that all its roadworks will meet these standards. Any other organisation working on TfL's roads will be monitored using CCTV and traffic police community support officers. Most roads in London are managed by local boroughs, so I'm asking them to meet the standards too. Your reports will be passed directly to the relevant authority, and my team will work to ensure improvements are made.

We are getting laws put in place by next year that allow us to properly charge for working on our roads - creating a real incentive to do works with minimum disruption. In the meantime, thank you for your help in keeping London moving.

Memories

I went to prep school at Montclair House School in Orpinaton. So did the Lander girls, Gillian and Christine. Their father had a farm on Well Hill at a house called Robbins. Every summer some of us children would be invited up at strawberry time to pick the fruit and enjoy a strawberry tea and games hosted by the delightful Ron and Norah Lander. It was such fun. I remember an old tramp who lived in the woods who I presumed helped on the farm. The bus stopped some way from the Hill so we must have had to plod up that hill to get there. But walking and chatting in the 1950's was one of the great pleasures of childhood then and nobody seemed to worry about our welfare

The Landers were very musical and I recall hearing the piano played by Ron who later became the resident organist at Chelsfield Methodist Church. I may have had the odd tinkle but piano lessons for me at that time were fairly purgitorial under the dickensian eve of Mr Upstool or Miss Betty Tucker. It was much later in life, around 1958, that I developed this basic tuition into playing for pleasure. So perhaps I should be arateful.

Living as I did in Chelsfield Lane, and schooling in a private school in Orpington, ruled me out of any contact with Chelsfield School. My mother used the village stores, Neals, and despite the frequent omissions and occasional stale packet of Kelloggs, we had a weekly delivery. Miss Burton, who lived in Craven Road, worked in the store and sliced the bacon with a giant slicer that went "zing" as it turned. The shop smelled of bacon and paraffin and even in those days of 1950 there were lead acid accumulators charging away on shelves.

Next door, at the Post Office, I would buy sweets, and some people came in for liquorice root, something I was denied because my mother said it was for people with some medical need!

I will rack my brains for other snippets of nostalgia but Dan has my unexpurgated childhood recollections from which he is free to extract and reprint at will. Heaven forbid, but I will have to accept that these outpourings are generally true, if a bit gritty and embarrassing in places!

Garden Train on YouTube

Hi everybody! I am taking the liberty of forwarding this bit of indulgence. Our railway featured on a Discovery TV series about 2001 but I had no idea it was on You Tube. The totally unscripted narration by me and done without a second take, rambles a bit, and some of the railway looks bit tired. But it's fun and I am chuffed.
